Hello,

The volume of new housing in Firhouse is substantial. Public transport is extremely stretched in this area. We need drastic changes. New bus stops, new/extended 15/15b routes, widened roads for bus corridors and anything else to help ease congestion. The daily commute for those who use cars is already difficult and there are hundreds of new houses soon to be finished. The government has allowed the housing but has yet again failed the public by not extending public services sufficiently to meet the demands of urban sprawl. Action was needed 2 years ago. Please consider making these changes in conjunction with good public planning and a well executed installation. Stupidity like the recent Orlagh roundabout fiasco is an example of what we do not need. Positive, helpful and intelligent planning is needed right away!

Jonathan
